Program Description

Transition services are intended to help youth with disabilities make a successful transition from public education to employment, post-secondary education, and life in their community. In Maryland, secondary transition programs and services begin at age 14. Based on October 1, 2021 Snapshot Data Count, Maryland had 96,543 students K-21 receiving special education and related services through an Individualized Education Program (IEP). Of these students, 34,773 are students ages 14-21 who have individually designed transition plans as part of their IEP.

The Maryland State Department of Education (MSDE), Division of Early Intervention and Special Education Services (DEI/SES) provides leadership, accountability, technical assistance, and resource management to local education agencies (LEAs), public agencies (PA), and stakeholders through a seamless, comprehensive, coordinated system of services to children and students with disabilities, birth through 21, and their families. See the DEI/SES Strategic Plan - Moving Maryland Forward, updated June 2021.

To narrow the gap in achievement, graduation, and post-school success between learners with disabilities and their peers without disabilities, two high-leverage strategies are included to guide the grants to be awarded:

College and Career Readiness Opportunities	Secondary Transition Planning
--	-------------------------------

Each key high-leverage strategy is further defined with specific requirements. Applicants must choose at least one of the strategies and provide a description of how planned activities align with the strategy, what products and/or services will be delivered, and the expected impact of the work.

NAVIGATING COMPETITIVE AND NON-COMPETITIVE OPPORTUNITIES

Maryland Elevates is comprised of two types of grant program opportunities across the high-leverage strategies within: competitive grants and non-competitive grants. Each grant program in Elevates has an icon, indicating whether the grant program is competitive or non-competitive.

Competitive Grants – These are grants for which any eligible applicant may apply and be considered for award

Non-Competitive Grants – These are grant programs that reflect expanded investment in existing MSDE programs. Consequently, program awards are only available to the identified organization.

High-Leverage Strategies

College and Career Readiness Opportunities

Overview: Youth with disabilities are less likely than their general education peers to graduate from high school, attend and complete colleges or post-secondary education programs, and become employed, according to historical data and the results of the National Longitudinal Transition Study-2. According to the National Collaborative on Workforce and Disability for Youth, the guideposts for the successful transition from school to adulthood are:

- Access to high-quality standards-based education;
- Information about career options and exposure to the world of work, including internships;
- Opportunities to develop social, civic, and leadership skills;
- Strong connections to caring adults;
- Access to safe places to interact with their peers; and
- Support services and specific accommodations to allow them to become independent adults.

For youth with disabilities, access to a high-quality education with the necessary supports and high expectations helps ensure that they are prepared for postsecondary and career opportunities. Quality transition planning involves a collaborative effort among special and general education teachers, related service providers, family members, and the learner with a disability to target post-secondary goals and strategize about how best to support the youth in achieving their desired outcomes.

Requirements: Institutions of Higher Education (IHE) applicants will partner with at least one Local Education Agency (LEA) to develop a model for systemic change to build the capacity of general and special education teachers through professional learning, job-embedded coaching, and innovative solutions for effective secondary transition services that lead to college and career readiness. Applicants will develop at least one of the key activities listed below (priority is given to applications that address more than one):

- Develop coursework to implement highly effective transition activities. Participants must include teacher candidates enrolled in an educator preparation program as well as current special education teachers. Key program elements must include:
 - Instruction, practicum experiences, and on-the-job coaching.
 - Content focusing on the development of transition programs and services differentiated by age bands (14 years through 15 years old, 16 years through 17 years old, 18 years – 21 years old) and alignment of postsecondary goals with academic and functional goals on a learner's Individualized Education Program (IEP).
 - Coursework that is evidence-based and demonstrates positive results in post-school outcomes leading to employment, post-secondary education, and community participation.
- Create a plan to identify and expand Maryland's CTE programs of study, work-based learning (e.g., practicums, clinical experiences, industry mentors) and Department of Labor (DOL) registered apprenticeships to include increased participation of learners with disabilities age 16 or older. Planning must address the specific challenges related to learners with disabilities completing at least 450 hours of work-based training under the supervision of an eligible employer and at least one year of related instruction. Successful applicants will:

- Develop an implementation plan for increasing both CTE access and enrollment as well as participation in apprenticeship opportunities that addresses equity concerns related to participation.
 - Using models described by the U.S. Department of Education in their report on Opportunities for Connecting Secondary Career and Technical Education \(CTE\) Students and Apprenticeship Programs, identify key partners (i.e., community colleges, technical colleges/schools, trade unions, industry leaders) to expand apprenticeship opportunities and addressing youth needs for accommodations, modifications, specially designed instruction, or other supports;
 - Recruit youth with disabilities, with an intentional focus on marginalized youth.
 - Coordinate a systemic approach to matching job seekers to employers and statewide training and education events through a research and evidence-based transition to work program for individuals with intellectual and developmental disabilities.
 - Provide hands on job training through integrated work site rotations, career exploration, innovative adaptations and mentoring from experienced staff.
 - Provide competitive integrated employment for student interns to utilize newly learned skills.
 - Coordinate work groups to address endorsements for learners who are exiting education with a Maryland Certificate of Program Completion (COMAR 13A.03.02.09).
 - Design and pilot customized asynchronous modules for statewide dissemination through the MSDE Learning Management System (CANVAS) for teachers in Career and Technical Education (CTE) programs regarding the delivery of specially designed instruction and accommodations that support access for youth with disabilities in CTE programs with meaningful outcomes.
 - Sustain a statewide steering committee of national advisors, state and local secondary transition stakeholders and service providers (representation from each LEA/Public Agency (PA)) to research current national, state, and local evidence-based strategies that impact post-secondary student outcomes and to address problems of practice for staff and their students with disabilities. Deliverables include accessible resources, training modules, and/or toolkits to be used statewide by teachers, service providers, and families to improve secondary transition outcomes. This grant activity is limited to $3,500.

Secondary Transition Planning

Overview: With a person-centered planning approach, the transition services designed for a youth with a disability are defined by individual interests and needs, with a focus on the unique strengths and capacities of the learner, while recognizing disability-specific concerns. Educators intentionally involve the youth and their family as primary contributors to the transition planning process, with consideration to the family's cultural and ethnic heritage.

Requirements: Applicants will partner with an LEA to design and implement a person-centered planning program to increase the number of adolescents with disabilities who have high-quality, effective transition plans that promote student voice in reaching positive post-school outcomes. Successful programs will provide opportunities for youth leadership, self-advocacy, and self-determination planning that empower the individual youth to be a key player in making decisions about their future. Key activities must include one or more of the following:

- Partner with two or more LEAs to create an exemplary, replicable model for youth with disabilities in middle school and high school to develop self-advocacy and leadership skills to achieve post-school employment, post-secondary education, and/or community independence. The model must include youth leadership skill development and coaching (i.e., Youth Personal Development Program) with quarterly follow-up with individual participants to assess outcomes for self-care, independent living, decision-making, social skills, and autonomy.
 - Design a training program for general and special education teachers to incorporate culturally responsive research-based practices and strategies to remove barriers and increase family participation and engagement in the secondary transition planning process.
 - This training program could be modeled after Making Action Plans (MAPs, Person Centered Planning in Action \(PATH\)), or another person-centered futures planning process.
 - This program would include explicit training for families to actively engage in the secondary transition planning process.
 - Design a course of study (CEUs) for general and special education teachers in partnership with selected representatives from LEAs, PAs, and non-public special education schools to develop self-determination and leadership skills, including a model to build the capacity of youth with disabilities to lead their own Individualized Education Program (IEP) transition planning meetings.
 - Implement a statewide evidence-based training program for LEAs, PAs, and non-public special education schools in the use of person-centered approaches to secondary transition planning for all youth with disabilities and their families.
 - Design and implement an evidence-based (How-To) process to support the development of a network of paid internship opportunities that leads to meaningful post-secondary, career, and community experiences. Student participants must the use of the Maryland Transition Digital Portfolio.

BENCHMARKS

The application for funding must provide benchmarks to measure quantifiable changes related to child, student, family outcomes and/or professional practices. Benchmarks represent a clear progression of outcomes and/or outputs aligned with plan implementation. Progress benchmarks include qualitative and quantitative data. Applicants will be required to complete the following chart in the electronic application:

It should contain three sections: management, implementation, and evaluation. See sample below:

Key Activities	Individual Responsible	Time Frame
Management Activity
Implementation Activity

Key Activities	Individual Responsible	Time Frame

Evaluation is an important part of determining the success of the program. Applicants are required to describe in detail what success will look like and the criteria that will be used to determine and measure success. Furthermore, grantees are required to submit annual evaluation reports and interim progress reports that are consistent with the project's goal and outcome(s).

Department of Education's General Education Provisions Act (GEPA) requires any applicant receiving federal funds to include in its application a statement that includes the steps the applicant proposes to take to ensure equitable access to and participation in its federally assisted program for learners, teachers, and other program beneficiaries with special needs. The GEPA allows applicants' discretion in developing the required statement. The statute highlights six (6) types of barriers that can impede equitable access or participation: gender, race, national origin, color, disability, or age.

BUDGET AND BUDGET NARRATIVE

The project's budget should detail all related project expenses in a separate itemized budget. It should demonstrate the extent to which the budget is reasonable, cost-effective, and integrates other sources of funding. All costs described in the project narrative should appear in the budget narrative and must have a corresponding entry in the itemized budget for that year. Reviewers should be able to see a clear connection between the project activities and the budget line items.
